"You've redecorated, I don't like it!" ~ Sir Charles

Notes From Your Chairman

I hope you are all well and have been enjoying the splendid weather we have been having within the last few months.

Yes, the weather has been indeed been rather good, though our Production of "War Shorts" was even better! It was a joy for me to be able to watch all six events that comprised this event, and I felt very proud of the Society at both performances. Several members of the audience were clearly moved by this event, particularly during the final event at both performances, and once again, we put ourselves in a very good light. Several members of the audience also commented to me that they had chosen to support the event based upon the success of last year's pioneering "Shorts" event, so there is clearly an audience for this unique style of theatre, and I am pleased that we have continued to develop this once again. My thanks to James and everyone else involved in bringing this great Production from its initial stage to the final performances.

Next year we are looking to take a summer event outside of Cranbrook, to a new venue altogether. This could be another great achievement for the Society, and further details will be made available to you as soon as they are confirmed.

In the meantime, the summer rehearsals have ended for "High Society", though they will soon be re-starting and we shall soon see this great musical being performed by the Society for the first time. However, we need people to come and help build and paint the scenery at Flishinghurst and our energetic set designer and stage manager, Nigel Stimson, is organising some weekend sessions, see inside for further details. I hope you will be able to come and join us.

Once the curtain comes down on "High Society", the main rehearsals for "Beauty and the Beast" will be starting, and if the standard of the auditions is maintained, we will have yet another truly amazing Pantomime on our hands, with a lot of fun and another great donation to charity. Many difficult decisions were made after the audition regarding the final casting, as the standards demonstrated by potential cast members were generally very high, with recalls being held for some of the parts. Congratulations to everyone who secured a part, though the necessary hard work will start again in early November.

On the subject of Pantomime, we are still looking for a director for our Christmas 2015 Production, so if you are interested in directing this, or are aware of a Pantomime that could be suitable, please get in touch. We will be opening up the Production slots for 2016 within the next few months, so anyone interested in directing a play, musical or pantomime, please start putting your thinking caps on, we look forward to receiving your thoughts in due course.

One imminent production we are all looking forward to is the arrival of Matt and Jackie's new baby, and we hope to announce further good news within the next issue. Within the last 12 months we have seen several members celebrate their half-century, and at the other end of the scales, I am sure you will all join me in congratulating Rachel on recently reaching her 30th birthday, and also to our President, Bill, who will also be reaching a major birthday within the next few weeks!

See you all at High Society, its going to be yet another great show!

NODA Summer School

As some of you may know, I recently had the opportunity to attend the NODA Summer School for a short course on Stage Sound. For those who don't know about the Summer School, have a look at <https://www.noda.org.uk/summerschool> to give you an idea of what sort of things are on offer.

For me, the idea was to go along and see what I could pick up on Stage Sound to, perhaps, enable me to help CODS in the future by running or helping to run aspects of the sound.

The course was run by a professional sound engineer who works at the Stephen Joseph Theatre (the Alan Ayckbourn one), Scarborough. He briefly touched on most aspects of theatre sound, including subjects such as, definitions and measurements, playback software, what makes up a sound system, what connectors are good for what, all aspects of a sound board, equalising, troubleshooting, microphones and lots more! If anyone is interested in knowing more about what was covered, feel free to contact me.

It was all very interesting and well worth doing. I feel able now, if not to completely run the sound for a production, to at least know what Gavin is talking about, helping him, and being able to learn further from him.

If anyone else has the opportunity next year, or in subsequent years, I highly recommend attending the Summer School. Whichever aspect you are particularly interested in learning more about I am sure it will be covered, performance related, or backstage related. Go to the website and see what is on offer.

Times Are A Changing, Help Needed!

Hi all. A year ago I was warmly welcomed into the "Flishinghurst gang" and CODS. I have subsequently worked with the "lads" for the last year in roles ranging from Set Construction, ins and out of the theatre, stage crew, Assistant Stage Manager, Deputy Stage Manager and now Set Designer and Stage Manager!

Why do I say all this? Because the joy and fun I have had in all these roles and to show the up and coming generation of CODS members that there is a vast array of positions in the Society that can be and need to be filled!

I have, for some time, due to personal work commitments, felt that the "lads" at Flishinghurst spend their time on a Friday morning almost in isolation to most people who need to work and support families, leaving many members possibly feeling unable to help! True, this is happening to me right now, so I have decided that on either the first and third Saturday mornings of the month (or second and fourth Saturday mornings, whichever works best) to make myself available to meet at Flishinghurst to progress whatever project is going on at the time. No talent needed, just the willingness to get hands dirty and throw a bit of paint about but if you are good at knocking nails in, that's great!

The scenery for High Society is currently being constructed but still lots to do and very soon I will be designing Beauty and the Beast which will need a very early start as this is going to be big by the sounds of it.

I suggest just two mornings a month as I fully appreciate work/family commitments have to come first. Your help would be invaluable and I guarantee you will enjoy every minute you can spare.

I need, on the same note, for High Society three, possibly four, members of a Stage Crew, if you can help I will be very grateful. Please contact me as soon as possible.

Thanks for enduring my ramblings, I hope to hear from some of you soon.

Provisional dates for the first set painting sessions are Saturday 13th and Saturday 27th September. Please keep an eye on CODS website, Facebook and your emails for more details.

Selection of Charities for Christmas Pantomime - can YOU help?

Work has already started on our forthcoming Christmas Pantomime of "Beauty And The Beast" and once again we are hoping to raise a generous donation to charities of our choice. We are looking to donate to a local charity, or two, if possible, and suggestions made so far by the Production Team include Hospice In The Weald, a local children's hospice, Preston Hall Hospital and "Changing Faces", which is a charity which provides support to people with disfigurements to the face, hands or bodies, and their families.

A final decision regarding the charities to be selected will be made by October; in this respect, if any member is aware of any local charity or community project worthy of our proposed donation, please can they let either Vicki or Andrew know as soon as possible?

The Executive Editor Ponders....

This your newsletter thingy? Hmmm..... You've redecorated, I don't like it! What? Yes, yes, you can quote me.

So what are they up to next me lad? What show? High Society? Very good, very interesting. I auditioned for the film version of that you know. Don't roll those eyeballs at me, I DID!

It's a strange story actually. I obviously saw myself as a Frank Sinatra, or Bing Crosby, after all everything I've been in has been wonderful and when I sung.... Well suffice to say, those listening to me felt the need to cover their ears, obviously the sheer beauty of my voice was too much for them.

Anyway, I went along, just to chat I thought. So I was myself, had a snifter before, and all that. And they said after half an hour, 'Wonderful, we particularly love that you came here in character and haven't let it drop for a single second!' I was dumbstruck, thanked them and left – they somehow managed to swap the cupboard and corridor doors though, I was quite put out.

It was only when I heard from my agent later that day I realised, they wanted me to play the slightly elderly, mostly inebriated uncle! I was appalled. Left that same day.
